01 Smashing Magazine

The screenshot shows the Smashing Magazine homepage. At the top is a navigation bar with links for Articles, Guides, Books, Workshops, Membership, Job Board, Newsletter, and More. A search bar is also present. Below the navigation is a horizontal menu with categories like Accessibility, CSS, JavaScript, React, Vue, Guides, UX, Design, Web Design, Figma, Wallpapers, Business, Career, Privacy, and Jump. The main content area features several article cards:

- Using HSL Colors In CSS by Ahmad Shadeed (published on Jul 5, 2021). The card includes a photo of Ahmad Shadeed, a snippet of the article text, and a "Continue reading" button.
- Email Testing Flow As It Should Be by Andriy Zapisotskyi (published on Jul 2, 2021).
- It's A (Front-End Testing) Trap! Six by Ramona Schwering (published on Jul 1, 2021).
- A sidebar on the right contains a circular icon of a red cat with a laptop, labeled "Email Newsletter". Below it is text about useful front-end & UX tips delivered once a week, and a call-to-action to subscribe via email.

02 Twitter

The image shows a screenshot of a Twitter profile page for "George Moller" (@georgemoller). The page is annotated with colored boxes to demonstrate semantic HTML structure:

- header: The top navigation bar containing "Home", "Explore", "Notifications", "Messages", "Bookmarks", "Lists", "Profile", and "More".
- nav: The "Edit profile" button and the "Tweets" tab in the navigation bar.
- section: The main content area featuring the user's bio ("DAILY CONTENT ON CSS HTML JS & UI/UX"), profile picture, and a "push follow" button.
- main: The sidebar on the right displaying "Redux Alternatives" and "Light text on dark backgrounds".
- aside: The "You might like" section showing profiles for Sarah Drasner, Brad Frost, and Devin Ford.
- nav: The "Trends for you" section at the bottom.

The image shows a screenshot of the Twitter mobile application. On the left, a sidebar contains navigation links: Home, Explore, Notifications (with 10 notifications), Messages, Bookmarks, Lists, Profile, and More. A blue 'Tweet' button is at the bottom. The main area displays a user profile for 'George Moller' (@georgemoller) with 2,076 tweets. A pinned tweet by George Moller from April 18, 2018, is highlighted with a pink border. It discusses '7 UX Laws you should know as a Frontend developer' and includes a link to a graphic titled 'JACOB'S LAW'. Below this is a 'Thread' section with another tweet from George Moller about Redux alternatives. To the right, a 'Trends for you' section is shown with a teal header, listing topics like 'Copa América Brazil vs Peru' (29.8K tweets), '#LaLetraChica' (Trending in Uruguay), 'D'Alessandro' (1,147 tweets), 'Paola' (Trending in Uruguay), and 'Silvia' (15.8K tweets). At the bottom, a 'Topics to follow' section lists 'Dani Alves' (Soccer player) with a 'Follow' button.

03 Github

The screenshot illustrates the GitHub repository interface with various semantic components highlighted:

- header: The top navigation bar containing the GitHub logo, search bar, and links for Pull requests, Issues, Marketplace, Explore, and nav.
- nav: The primary navigation bar below the header, listing Code, Issues (37), Pull requests (29), Discussions, Actions, Security, Insights, and nav.
- main: The main content area displaying the repository's codebase, including branches (master, 39 branches), tags (158 tags), and a list of commits by adamwathan.
- details & summary: A dropdown menu for the 'Watch' button, titled 'Notifications'. It includes sections for 'Participating and @mentions', 'All Activity', 'Ignore', and 'Custom'. The 'Custom' section is expanded, showing a 'details-menu' button.
- details-menu: A custom element used for the expanded 'Custom' notifications settings.

- <header>
- <nav>
- <main>
- <details> & <summary>
- <details-menu>

<details-menu> is actually a custom element (see Web Components standard) created by github.
